SEASON 2 EPISODE 35: INTERVIEW WITH REBECCA SEIDEN AND ALLY JOEL OF BOULDER COUNTY HUMAN SERVICES

SHOW SUMMARY

Successful housing programs for neurodiverse people can be based on publicly funded initiatives. In 2002, voters in Boulder County, Colorado passed one such measure authorizing the building of housing units and supports for the intellectually disabled in their community. Our interview explores the goals and scope of this innovative program and how it aims to serve the needs of the autistic and intellectually disabled community of Boulder County.
